Making rounds

Health Advocate, Inc., a Plymouth Meeting-based health advocacy and assistance company founded by a team of former U.S. Healthcare executives, has expanded to the West Coast by opening a new office in the San Francisco Bay area. The office will be led by Bonnie Cunningham, who has joined the company as vice president of sales for California. She was previously vice president of client services for Right Management Consultants. Health Advocate helps companies and their employees navigate the complexities of the health-care and health-insurance industries.
